Suggestions to the Teacher.

POSITION.

Experience has proved that correct execution of the vertical script depends largely upon the position at the desk, and the front position is considered best by most authors and teachers. Special attention should be given to position—otherwise the writing will assume a backward slant.

To secure the desired position the following details require attention:

1. The body should squarely face the desk; it should be nearly upright, and brought close to the desk, but not near enough to touch it.
2. The feet should rest flat upon the floor, the left foot thrown a little in advance of the right.
3. The forearm should rest upon the desk.
4. The writing arm should form a right angle with the ruled lines of the book.
5. The left hand should hold the book firmly in position, and form a right angle in connection with the writing arm.

PENHOLDING.

1. The writing hand should rest upon the tips of the nails of the third and fourth fingers. This rest for the hand is called the sliding rest.
2. Rest the arm upon the muscular part between the elbow and wrist.
3. Hold the wrist flat, so that a coin or button placed on it will not slide off.
4. The wrist should not touch the desk.
5. Place the first finger upon the pen from one to one and one-half inches from the point, so that it will cross the finger between the second and third joints; the finger will thus form a small bow.
6. Hold the second finger so that the pen will cross it at the root of the nail.
